AGNES' CORNER

End of the year is fast approaching and so is the start of the engagement season! Statistics shows that proposals happen between November through Valentine's Day. This is a popular time when family and friends are all gathered for the holiday celebration.

Let's face it, getting engaged is every woman's dream! We dream about the proposal, ring, perfect dress, and venue and of course...how you will say "YES". If you will be showing up with an engagement ring soon, it is important to be on the same mindset with your significant other about your future. Have this conversation before the holiday season starts.

Be strategic and let your partner know what kind of ring you want or have a close friend or family give your future spouse some hints. It is not the size or price of the ring. Drop hints on how you want to be proposed to. Casually remind your partner about how important family is on special occasions or if you want something intimate, maybe go down the memory lane on how much you enjoyed your time at a specific place (maybe a place where you met or had your first kiss).

It is never early to start now; spurge a little getting your nails done and keep your hands moisturized during this season.

For inspiration, browse our website or our social media postings together to get ideas. Explore our various all-inclusive resort options for a romantic stress-free destination wedding and honeymoon in the Caribbean or Mexico.

Have a wonderful holiday season and happiness starts here!

Let your journey starts with us and be a resource by providing guidance and support every step of the way!
